

A Free 8-week Creative Arts Class for Adults ages 55+

Eco Art Making

in Celebration of the White Mountain National Forest Centennial

Location: Plymouth Regional Senior Center
8 Depot St., Plymouth NH

When: Tuesdays & Thursdays, June 12-July 5, 2018
9:45-11:45 a.m.

Inspired by the Museum of the White Mountains exhibit “The People’s Forest,” participants will explore environmental themes through a variety of eco art experiences, and will use the processes they learn to create work that communicates their ideas about nature and the environment.

Instructor Cynthia Robinson is the director of the Museum of the White Mountains and Karl Drerup Exhibitions Program at Plymouth State University and a practicing teaching artist.

Register early, as class size is limited.

Absolutely no experience is required, but experienced artists are also welcome! Lunch will be offered at noon, after the class.

There is no registration fee, though donations are welcome.

Parking is free; transportation is available for those who need it.

Register by phone (603-536-1204), by email (rkoczur@gcsc.org) or in person at the Center, or online at www.experiencearts.org. These programs are co-sponsored by AANNH and GCSCC. Additional programs are being offered throughout the county between now and December.

This program is made possible through the national Seeding Vitality Arts initiative of Aroha Philanthropies with additional support from the Couch Family Foundation. Experience/Arts programs are intended to inspire and enable older adults to learn, make and share arts in ways that are novel, complex and socially engaging. No experience is necessary—only the passion to learn something new and to challenge yourself through an arts medium!
